Termite Treatment!

Why You Need A Professional

Termites are hard to remove for the simple reason that the typical termite nest can have between 2,000-10,000 termites per square foot. Treatment involves a small trench dug around the entire foundation (1-2" deep) to help the products flow down and be absorbed into the soil.

Dangers Posed by Termites

Do termites really eat wood? YES, they do. While termites are not directly harmful to humans, indirectly subterranean termites are some of the most destructive pests in the world.

Two-pronged Treatment Approach

Stride provides two recurring mosquito suppression methods - Bait Stations and Misting.

We primarily deal with two families of mosquitoes in central Texas, the Aedes and Culex. The Aedes species are found closer to the ground (<10 ft) and are the main focus of the bait stations. The Culex species are found higher in the canopy and are targeted by misting.
